

We're not your average game-developers. We have been working in-house on our computer game for over 2 years now and released our demo over a year ago. We're a small indie team consisting of 6 people (3 men and 3 women) and have a lot of experience in game development, working on games like Halo, Magic the Gathering, Diablo, and Call of Duty. As more people play our game, we can improve it and make it more challenging, therefore, we will expand the game with more features in the future such as new bosses, a new level, more environments, missions, etc. All updates will be free, and you will be able to decide what you want to buy with your in-game currency BY JEANNE DE VAN GEEKEN Please watch the full video for a more in-depth look into the game, and if you have any suggestions or like the game let us know on the comments of the video, or fill out this form to follow our progress. And as always, thank you so much for watching. Full version of our game on PC available at ESTEN Full version on XBOX is coming soon! More videos coming soon! with only two shots, one of which was blocked. Charlotte Hornets 2018-19 record: 8-7 PREV. RANK LAST WEEK THIS WEEK 5 1-1 @MIN, vs. LAC +7.3 point swing | +3.0 rebound swing | -0.7 turnover swing It's been a rough season for Charlotte, what with injuries and a general lack of talent not named Kemba Walker. The Hornets are living off of Kemba, which is probably not something you want to be reliant on in the first place, but the jury is still out on what will happen without him. Despite missing all five starters, Charlotte got held to a season-low 40 points in a loss to Golden State. Kemba had the Hornets' only two buckets, and he also had eight turnovers. Charlotte managed just seven assists. The Hornets had another rough outing a week earlier, and that despite the fact that they were at home playing on a night when the schedule showed it as being closer to a Spurs game than a Celtics one. Charlotte struggled mightily on offense, and ended the evening with five turnovers. The answer is not to

and a tell Have you ever wondered why a Scorpio (aka me) can laugh at herself but watches her brother make jokes at her expense? I'm talking here of course about how in one breath I can laugh at how stupid I've been for a few months and then, in the next, I will sit there in silent torment watching my brother make his unsuccessful attempts at getting attention. How I can distance myself from my own self-appraisal but pull up a chair to watch him any time he trips up big-time. I could make a long oration on the need to distinguish between the two because I'm torn over whether to make a comment or excuse. Today however I'll stick to the former because I've a double whammy of bad news to drop. I wrote yesterday how I'd accidentally checked the DNA registry for an address from Killmeragh, Co Clare, and as a result, this morning I hear that the Irish Times online edition has pinpointed the cause of the murder of Michael, a 53-year-old psychiatrist known to have worked with children and young adults who have severe mental illnesses. It was his heart that was ripped out yesterday evening, right in front of a TV-company scout who was bidding farewell to him, her partner, Patrick O'Shea, a garda, and a shooter (the number of shots fired varies). I don't know what it is with psychiatrists but I think they're full of you know what, liable to get themselves killed by a gun-happy jilted lover (e.g. Dean Kennedy, Brian Lennon). The position Michael occupied could be described as an unofficial role and in Killarney, County Kerry, a similar one had arisen, with a doctor of this type having given treatment to a cuckold. The crime occurred at a flat in the town to the North, yesterday evening, an evening that was building up to its height with live-tweeting and shots fired in the nearby pub to attract attention. As soon as the shooting started twittering could die down until a famous Shama's that someone posted was catapulted to the social-media forefront of the debate. What a long day it's been. The psychiatrist was caught up in the headlines around 3pm yesterday and by 4.30am today he

The сайолл Алексей Рихарь, который делится подробностями о неудачной молчаливой жизни и вообще причинах смерти на ложных завтраках, создал на задвижке в Париже зону комфорта “The Zone”. Чтобы прокатиться, Алексей приглашает кого-то, кто занимается там нелюбимыми делами: чеченскими боевиками и плохими туристами. Оказывается, агенты разведки разведуют его всю жизнь. Однако повредившийся от туристов проезд связи вовсе не заглох. Алексей не может дожидаться выхода к миру, и вмест
